LEARNING ACTIVITIES AND METHODOLOGY

Methodology is composed of three broad issues:

1. Magistral classes, with support on specialised text books and readings, through which theoretical frameworks will be presented in order for students to focus on the different aspects of Human resource management and their functions in the context of organizations. During the Magistral classes, students will have to make some group presentations.

2. Case-method approach, whereby issues related with human resource management in real organizations will be presented. Such cases will stimulate students to employ the theory learned in magistral classes as framework of analysis and interpretation to search for solutions.

3. Teachers will be available for students at the office. The last week of the semester will be dedicated to tutorials in order for students to ask doubts and address the final exam with adequate preparation.

ASSESSMENT SYSTEM

Evaluation will be based on the following elements:

- Written exam (composed of a multiple choices test and open questions)
- Written exercises (team reports)

% end-of-term-examination: 60

% of continuous assessment (assignments, laboratory, practicals...): 40
