Preparation of papers and reports individually or in groups, with information search by the student

TUTORIALS:

Students will have access to tutorials with the person responsible for the coordination of the subject.

The purpose of tutoring is to organize the teaching and learning processes based on the interaction between the student and the teacher with the purpose of:

- (i) Direct the students' autonomous and group work
- (ii) Deepen in different aspects of the subject
- (iii) Guide the academic and integral formation of the student.

ASSESSMENT SYSTEM

The mission of the evaluation is to determine the degree of compliance with the programmed objectives. In this regard, it should be noted that the Master in Telecommunications Law, Data Protection, Audiovisual and Information Society is a program that is taught face-to-face, as it is considered essential the student's assistance to access and understand the knowledge and experiences transmitted by the different professors that participate in the master's degree that have an important professional and academic trajectory in the developed subject.

From this consideration, it is necessary to emphasize that the final qualification of the students that seeks to value the knowledge acquired through the evaluation system of the subject that combines the following activities and percentages:

- (i) Final Exam (50%). There will be a test test of individual knowledge, related to the main concepts developed during the sessions, with questions prepared by the different teachers who have taught the sessions.
- (ii) Completion of individual activities or works during the development of the subject (50%): Various activities will be considered, such as the resolution of practical cases; search for different documentation indicated in advance and worked; exhibition and defense of the materials worked; reading of the bibliography and summary of its exhibition.

Students are required to attend all the theoretical and practical classes that have been scheduled. They may only absent themselves, without justified reason, to a maximum of 15 percent of the class attendance hours (not sessions or days) in each subject. In case of excused absences, the total maximum will be 25 percent. If the student incurs a lack of attendance higher than those indicated, he will be qualified with a "0" in the continuous evaluation. Likewise, absences below these percentages may be taken into account when modulating the continuous assessment grade, especially if it includes a participation grade.

In the extraordinary evaluation the final exam will count 60% -Test, development, practical case- and the evaluation continues 40%. To be examined in this extraordinary call must have the assistance required above, unless justified cause, accepted by the address of the Master

Students who do not take the final exam, either in the ordinary or extraordinary session, will be classified as not submitted.

% end-of-term-examination:	50
% of continuous assessment (assignments, laboratory, practicals...):	50
