LEARNING ACTIVITIES AND METHODOLOGY

Students will acquire the knowledge and skills through lectures on readings and discussions in class, under the guidance of the teacher who will present the main topics and conceptual frameworks. Reading materials will be given at the beginning of the term and will provide the content of the final exam. Other interactive activities will be developed during the tutorials, in order to stimulate the analysis of specific problems and to elaborate a deeper understanding of the theoretical frameworks. There will be at least one general tutorial in the last weeks of the course in which the student will have the chance to clarify doubts about the main concepts and models used in the lectures, as well as doubts about assessment and the schedule of the course.

ASSESSMENT SYSTEM

Assessment of the course, as the whole teaching programme, consists of two different sections, theoretical and applied. For each part, which represent the 50% of the course, students will have two different grades, and the final mark will be the adding of both. To pass the course a minimum mark in each part of the course might be established. Throughout the term, exercises and presentations on selected materials will be required. Marks from these assignments will provide an important percentage of the overall grade. The written final exam will count up to a maximum of the 60% of the final grade, in each of both parts of the course.

% end-of-term-examination:	60
% of continuous assessment (assignments, laboratory, practicals...):	40
