Regular lecturing: regular lectures will be taught, where the main concepts and elements of the program will be explained and clarified, and that the students are supposed to learn. To this end, the professor will recommend reference manuals and readings at the beginning of the term, as well as a specialised bibliography for specific subjects, together with tailored reading materials for a better comprehension of the different lectures. These working materials will help introducing the debates and the class discussions, especially those who are the most interesting both for the professor and the students.

The teaching methodology will combine the theoretical and practical approach and of a labor legal nature. The on-site tutorships will be held at the time and place determined by the professor.

ASSESSMENT SYSTEM

% end-of-term-examination/test:	50
% of continuous assessment (assignments, laboratory, practicals...):	50

The final grade of the student will be constituted by adding up the grade obtained in the ¿ongoing assessment¿ (50% of the final grade) and in the final examination (50% of the final grade).

The ongoing assessment will take into account:

- The completion of class discussions, case studies, seminars and fieldworks. The following aspects will be taken into consideration: the student skills in handling documents and materials, the capacity to produce correct and fast replies to the situations and problems proposed, and the ability to find solutions to the case studies
- The participation and the actual involvement of the student in the class discussions, in seminars and in the lectures and the personal contribution to the different group assignments.

The final exam will be in the form of a ¿multiple-choice¿ test and its grade will represent 50% of the final grade.

If a student does not pass the ongoing assessment, he will take an additional case-study examination, which will be graded together with the grade obtained in the final exam of the course. This will help ascertaining whether the student has acquired the pre-determined skills

The same assessment criteria will apply to the extraordinary exams sessions. The student must complete a theory exam and a practical exam. The completion of the practical exam will not be necessary if the student has passed the continuous assessment
