

Research Paper

Academic Year: (2023 / 2024)

Review date: 21-04-2023

Department assigned to the subject: International Law, Ecclesiastical Law and Philosophy of Law Department

Coordinating teacher: DORADO PORRAS, JAVIER

Type: Compulsory ECTS Credits : 10.0

Year : 2 Semester : 0

OBJECTIVES

This subject constitutes the student's first step in research. It allows them to culminate their research training and to confront their Master Thesis.

1. Basic skills:

- Apply the knowledge gained and the ability to confront new problems in contexts related to this field of study.
- Integrate knowledge and face complexity to formulate assessments from limited information
- Communicate conclusions and the reasons that justify them to skilled and non skilled audiences.
- Incorporate learning skills to continue the process of learning in an autonomous way.

2. General skills

- Use of specialized techniques to handle legal and doctrinal instruments to solve theoretical and practical issues.
- Ability to look for, process and analyze relevant information from different sources
- Ability to learn, actualize and complete knowledge
- Dominate methods and techniques of legal research
- Adaptation to new situations with continuous and autonomous learning.
- Ability to apply mechanisms to deal with complex legal and social issues related to human rights from a multidisciplinary approach.
- Acquisition of attitudes of permanent inquiry, leading to identify and use relevant specialized sources of information.

3. Specific skills

- Identify and analyze the economic and social implications in the development of rights and liberties.
- Organize and plan the stages of an investigation on human rights in a coherent way.
- Justify alternative developments in the theory of human rights

DESCRIPTION OF CONTENTS: PROGRAMME

The student has to write a research paper on a human rights subject.

The subjects are defined in a way that covers the different aspects in which human rights have been studied.

LEARNING ACTIVITIES AND METHODOLOGY

The research paper is developed under the supervision of a tutor, who has also to assess the final version. The student will use the skills, methods and knowledge acquired.

ASSESSMENT SYSTEM

Research Essay on second year will be assessed by a professor of the Master as the director. The research Essay will have an extension between 15000 and 2000 words. The system will be the same on extraordinary call

% end-of-term-examination:	0
% of continuous assessment (assignments, laboratory, practicals...):	100

