The third block includes offenses against public administration and judicial misconduct. This subject is aligned with the Sustainable Development Goals, primarily goal 16 on Peace, Justice and Strong Institutions.

LEARNING ACTIVITIES AND METHODOLOGY

There are two types of classes, theoretical and practical.

In the theoretical classes, the professors shall review the lessons of the program, organizing tutorials about them, and in the practical ones, several cases will be discussed and solved.

In order to make the most of the lectures, it is desirable that the students review the materials for each subject prior to the classes, as well as that attendance to practical classes involves, prior to the class, having read and studied practical cases provided for that week.

ASSESSMENT SYSTEM

% end-of-term-examination:	60
% of continuous assessment (assignments, laboratory, practicals...):	40

60%: Written final exam (the teacher may offer the option of an oral examination, in which case several dates will be provided for the examination).

40%: Continuous assessment (multiple choice-test and/or case study). The test will take place during the last joint group session. If the professor chooses to do, in addition, a case study, this will be done in the 5th reduced group session.

The extraordinary examination shall consist in a theoretical exam and a case study.

Active participation in classes and seminars can be assessed to modulate the continuous assessment

% end-of-term-examination:	60
% of continuous assessment (assignments, laboratory, practicals...):	40

(10%).

If the note of the final exam is lower than 40%, the mark of the continuous assessment will not be added to the mark of the final exam and the subject will be considered failed.

Cheating in these tests or any other form of academic fraud implies failure of the test, failure in the exam session and the other consequences that the University regulations foresee for academic fraud.

Given that in the assessment tests of this subject the use of support materials is not allowed (except for legal texts on paper for practical cases, if the teacher authorises them), the use of Generative AI is not allowed in this subject. Its use to help or complete any work deliverable in this subject will be academically penalised, as it will be considered academic fraud. The consequence will be the one that the University regulations foresee for academic fraud.
